

Green family rides philanthropy wave

➔ FROM surfing awards to sculpture, the Green family are a busy bunch.

Founders of the publishing house Pantera Press at Neutral Bay, the Greens are passionate about literature, the arts and philanthropy.

Mrs Jenny Green was at the University of NSW last week when the chancellor David Gonski unveiled her large abstract sculpture in the foyer of the university's library.

Pantera Press-sponsored charity Misfit Aid also received a Surfing Spirit Award recently. Misfit deploys volunteer surfers in disaster relief.

Pantera also caught the surfing spirit with the latest novel by Jenny's husband and author

Sculptor Jenny Green with University of NSW vice-chancellor Professor Fred Hilmer and chancellor David Gonski.

John M. Green. The Trusted features a surfer turned spy who must deal with global catastrophe. Daughter Alison Green, CEO of Pantera, has also been appointed to the NSW Writers Centre board.