New York Report Part 2 - tlg Sculptor Jenny Green

"At the Whitney Museum I am enthralled - almost against my will - by a Jeff Koons retrospective. I venture to the Brooklyn Museum to see the 'Killer Heels' Exhibition in my own pink stiletto sculpture 'Beautopia' would fit perfectly in this show! I take refuge at one of my favourite places, the remarkable Sculpture Garden at MOMA. Of course, the rest of MOMA is equally brilliant!

Jeff Koons 'Hanging Heart' at the Whitney Museum, New York

My must do excursion every time I visit New York is a trip upstate New York to Storm King Art Centre on the Hudson River about an hour North of Manhattan. Imagine 500 acres of rolling hills and wooded trails hosting over 100 monumental sculptures, including works by David Smith, Alexander Calder, Mark De Suvero, Henry Moore, Louise Nevelson and Barbra Hepworth. Pick the right day and you'll ramble around, perhaps on a bike, and picnic under the shadows of a George Rickey work gliding in the air above you." - Jenny Green.
